

Cornell University
Southeast Asia Program

Do you speak a Southeast Asian or South Asian language? Do you like to have fun? Teach a language and share culture with school children in the Afterschool Language Program with support from the Cornell Southeast Asia Program (SEAP).

We are currently looking for Cornell students, staff, or faculty volunteers to teach Southeast Asian and South Asian languages in local afterschool programs. Classes are generally held in the late afternoon one day a week for six weeks. The preparation time for volunteer teachers should be no more than one hour a week—we are here to help you! For more details, please contact SEAP Outreach Assistant Akida Aierken at aa2353@cornell.edu.
